Answering the teacher's questions

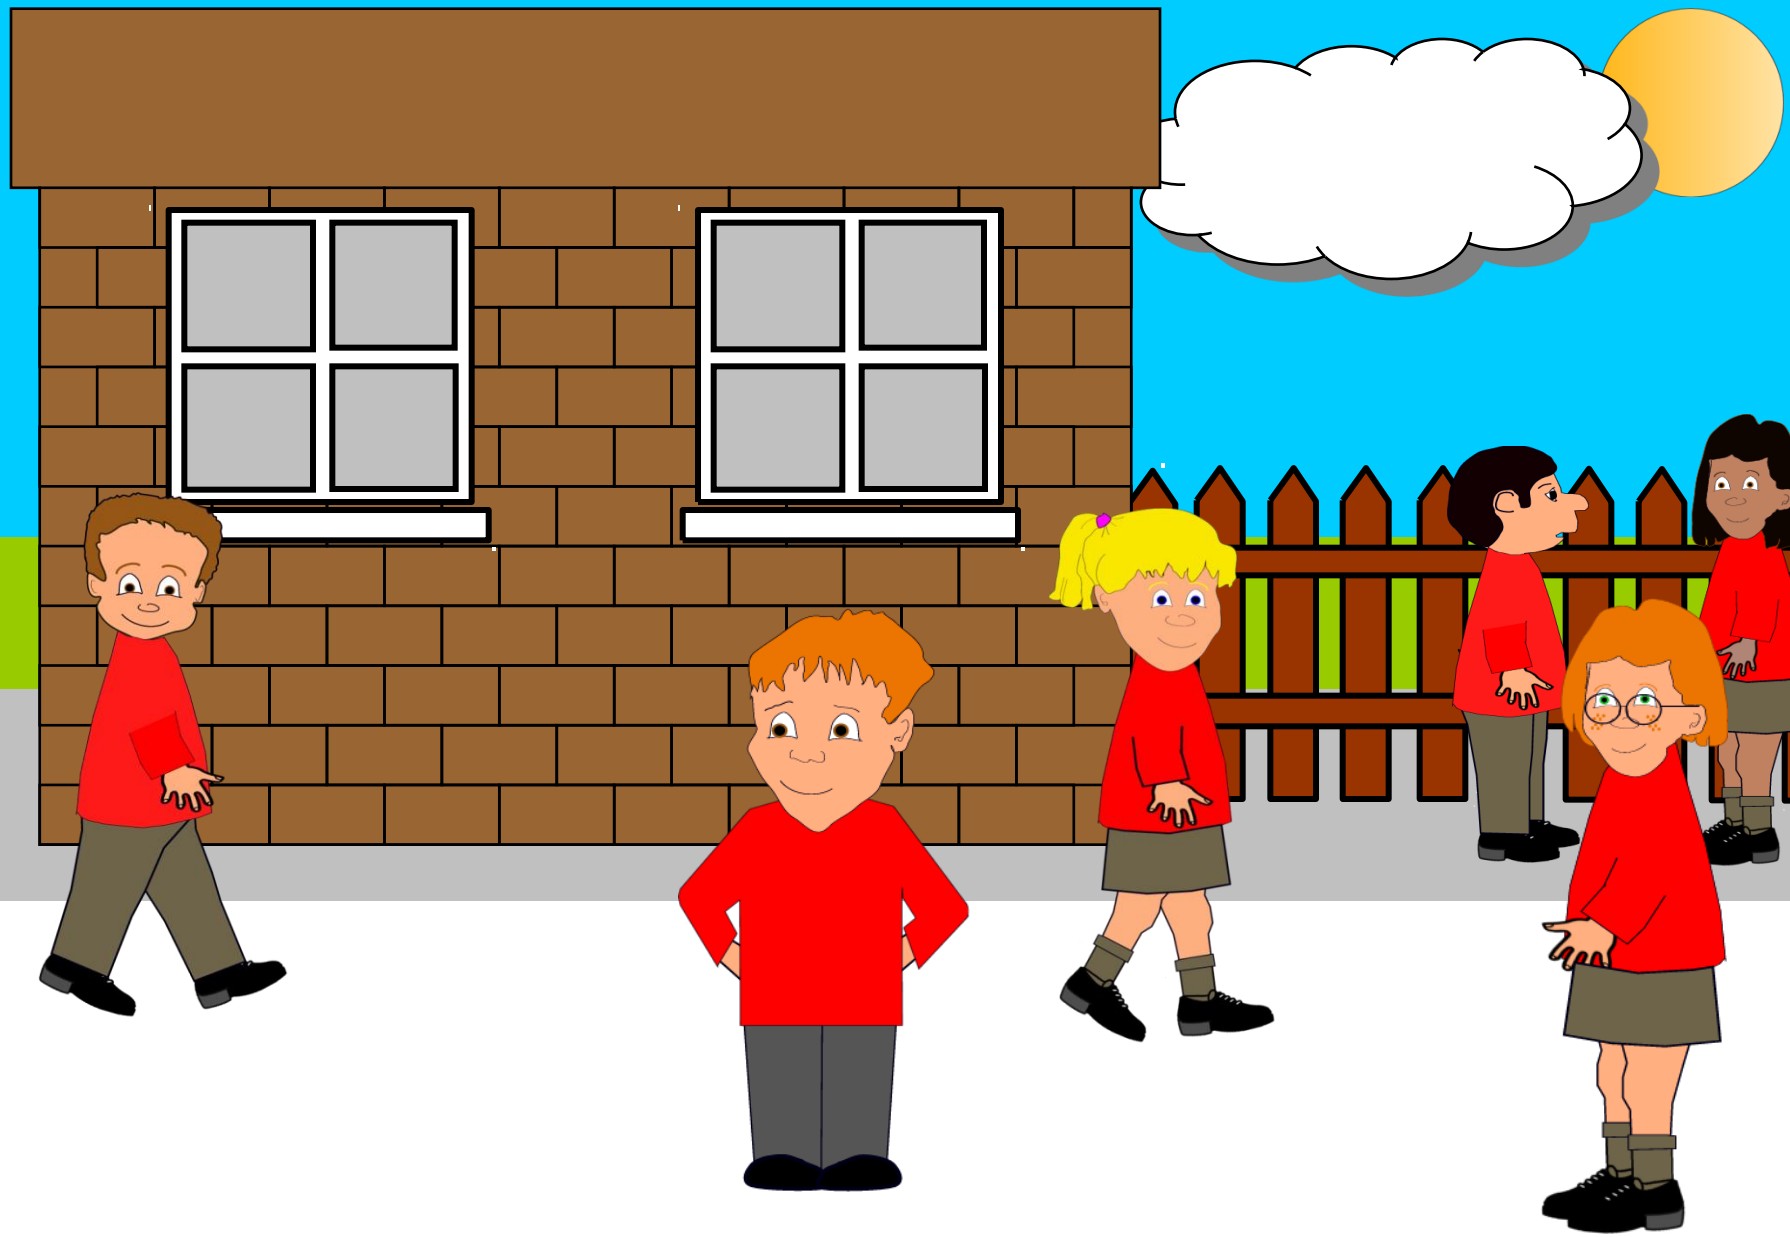

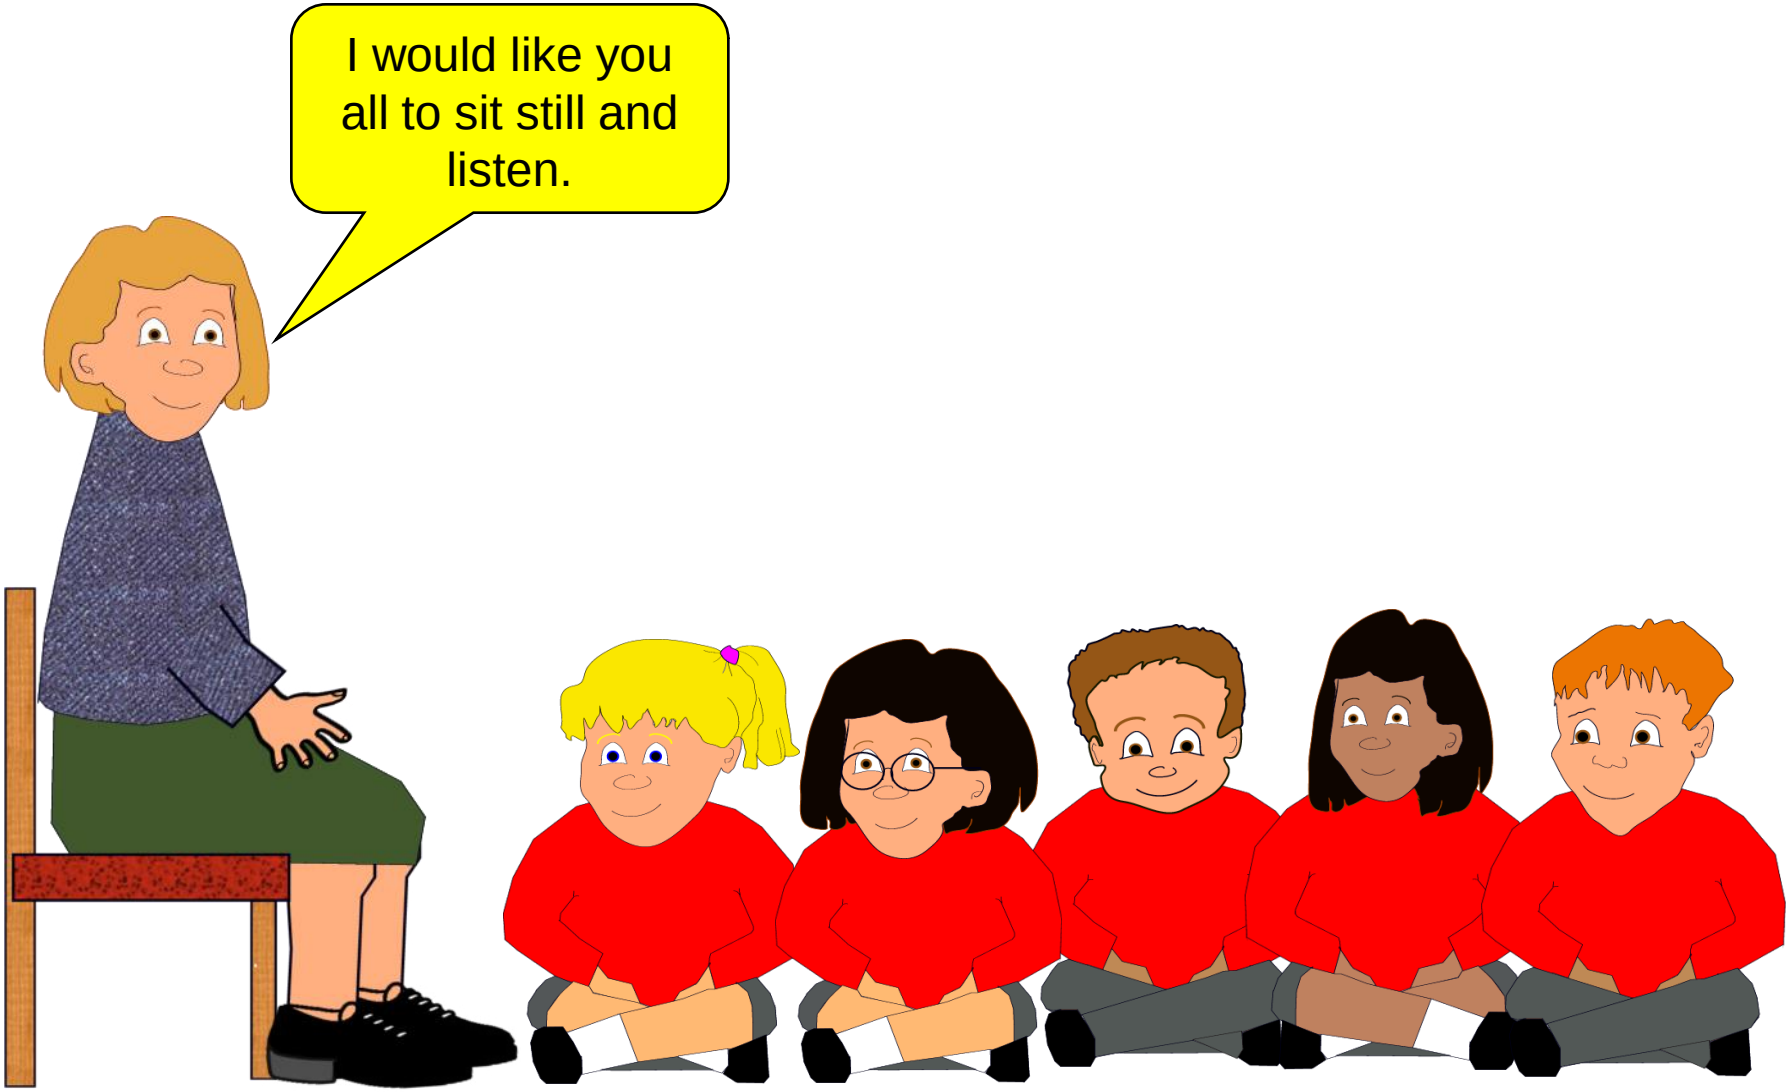

Created by George Timlin

My name is _____

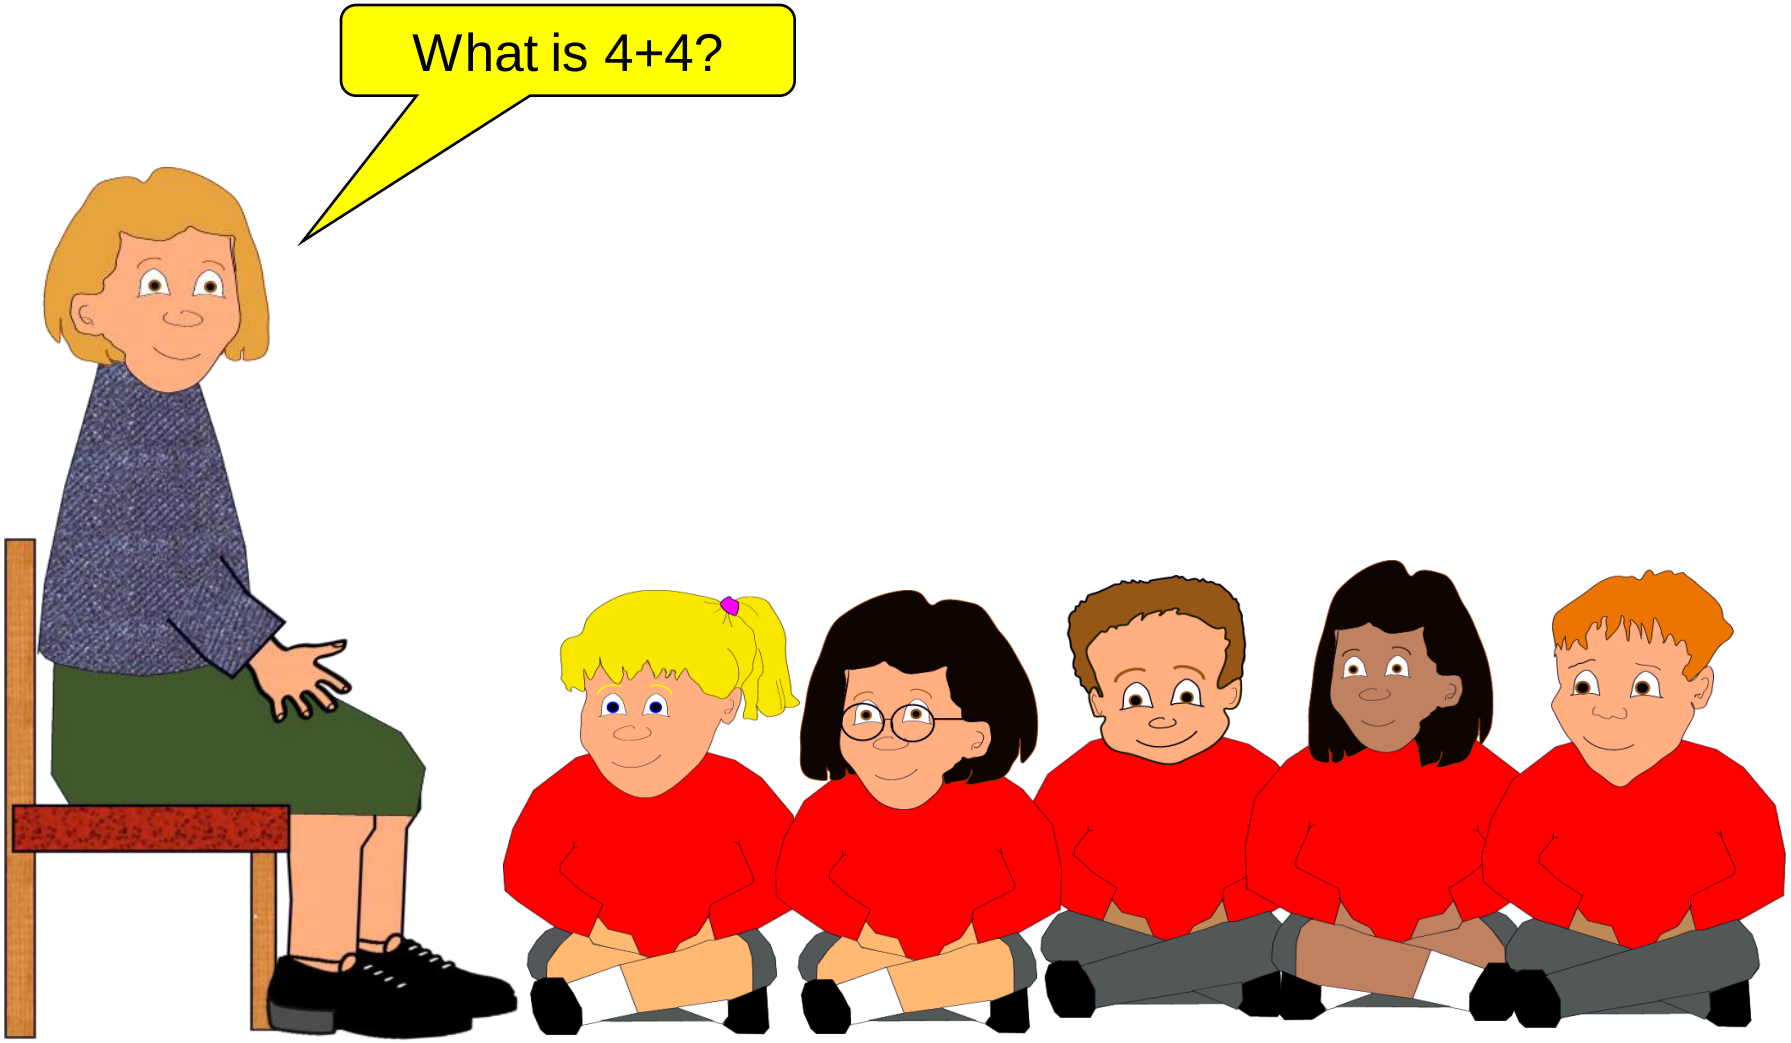

I go to _____

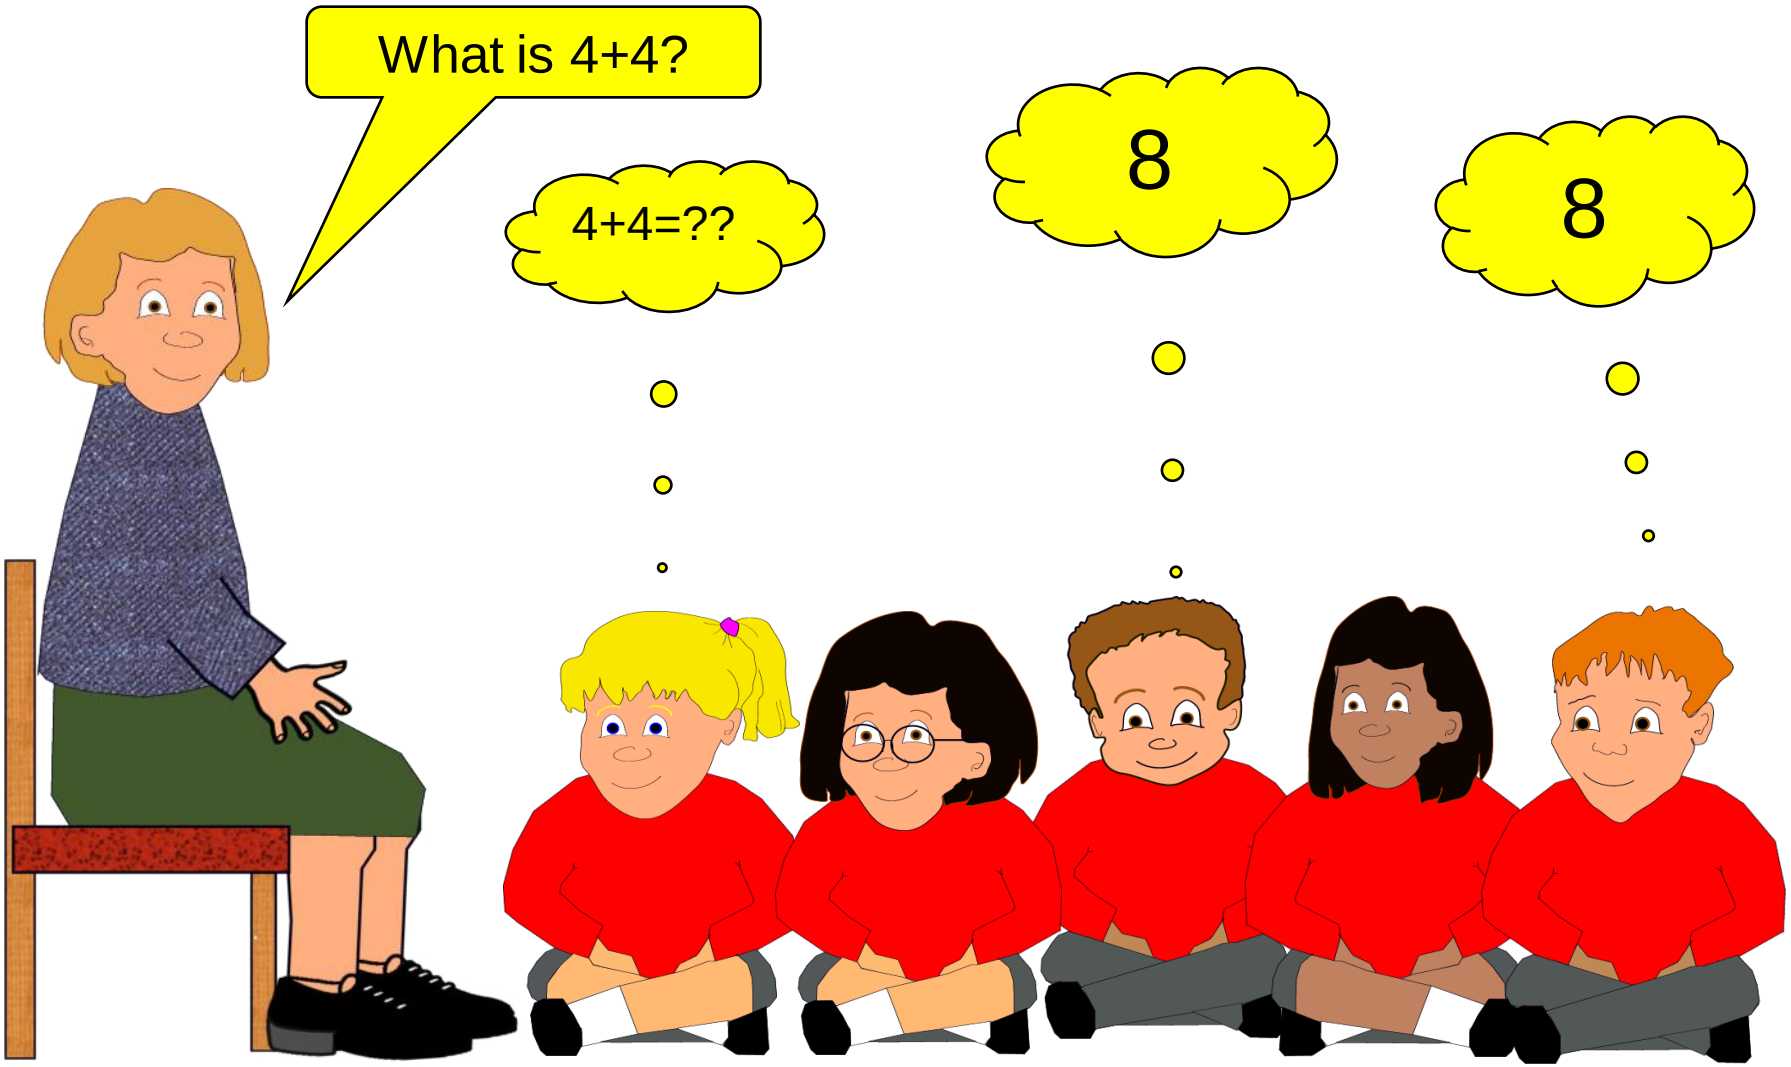

Sometimes the teacher talks to the children.

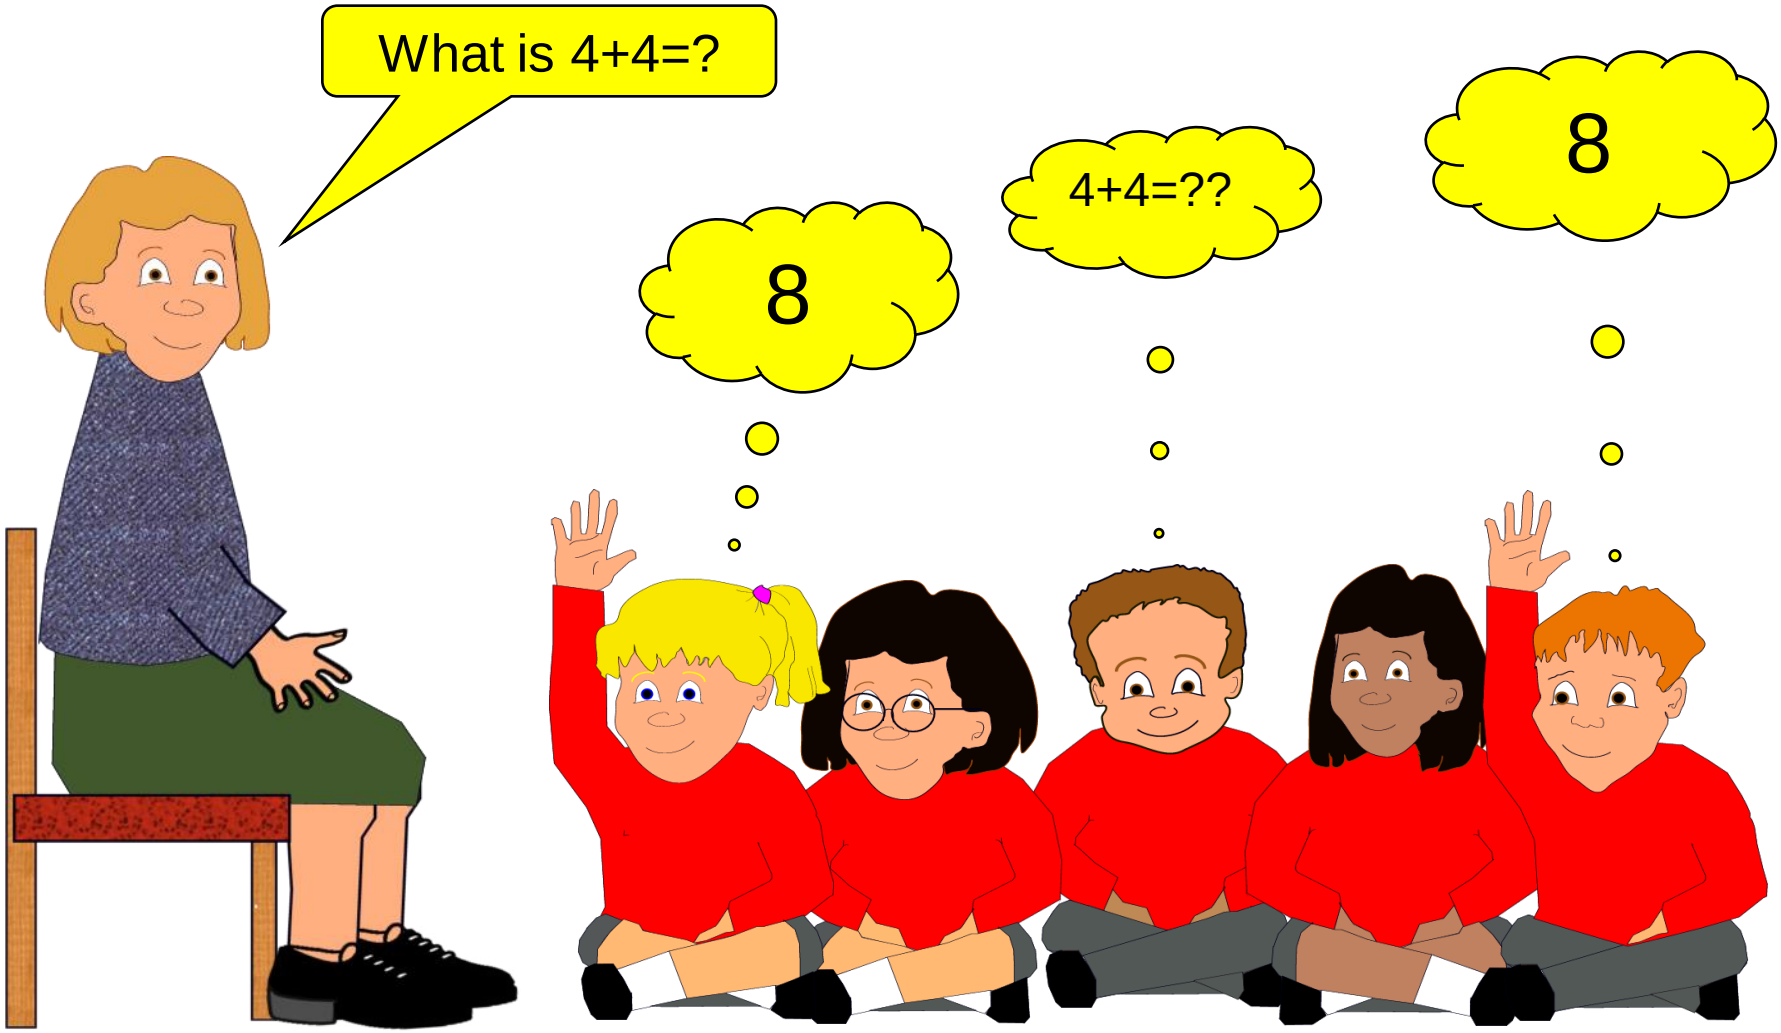

The children usually sit still and listen.

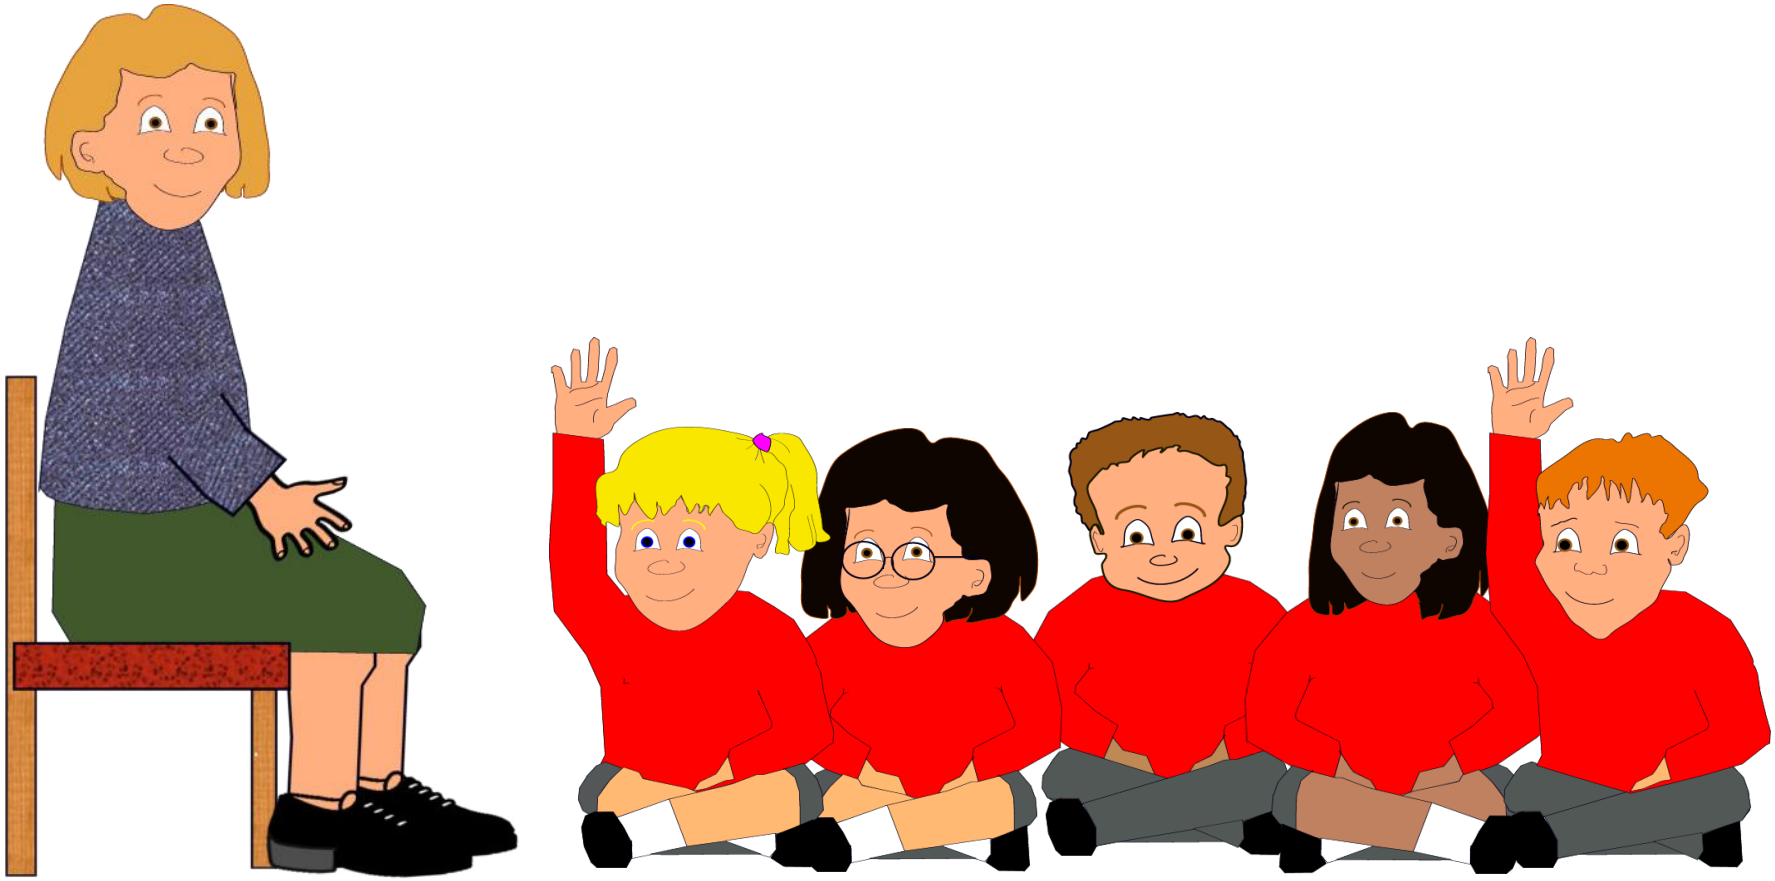

Sometimes the teacher will ask the children a question.

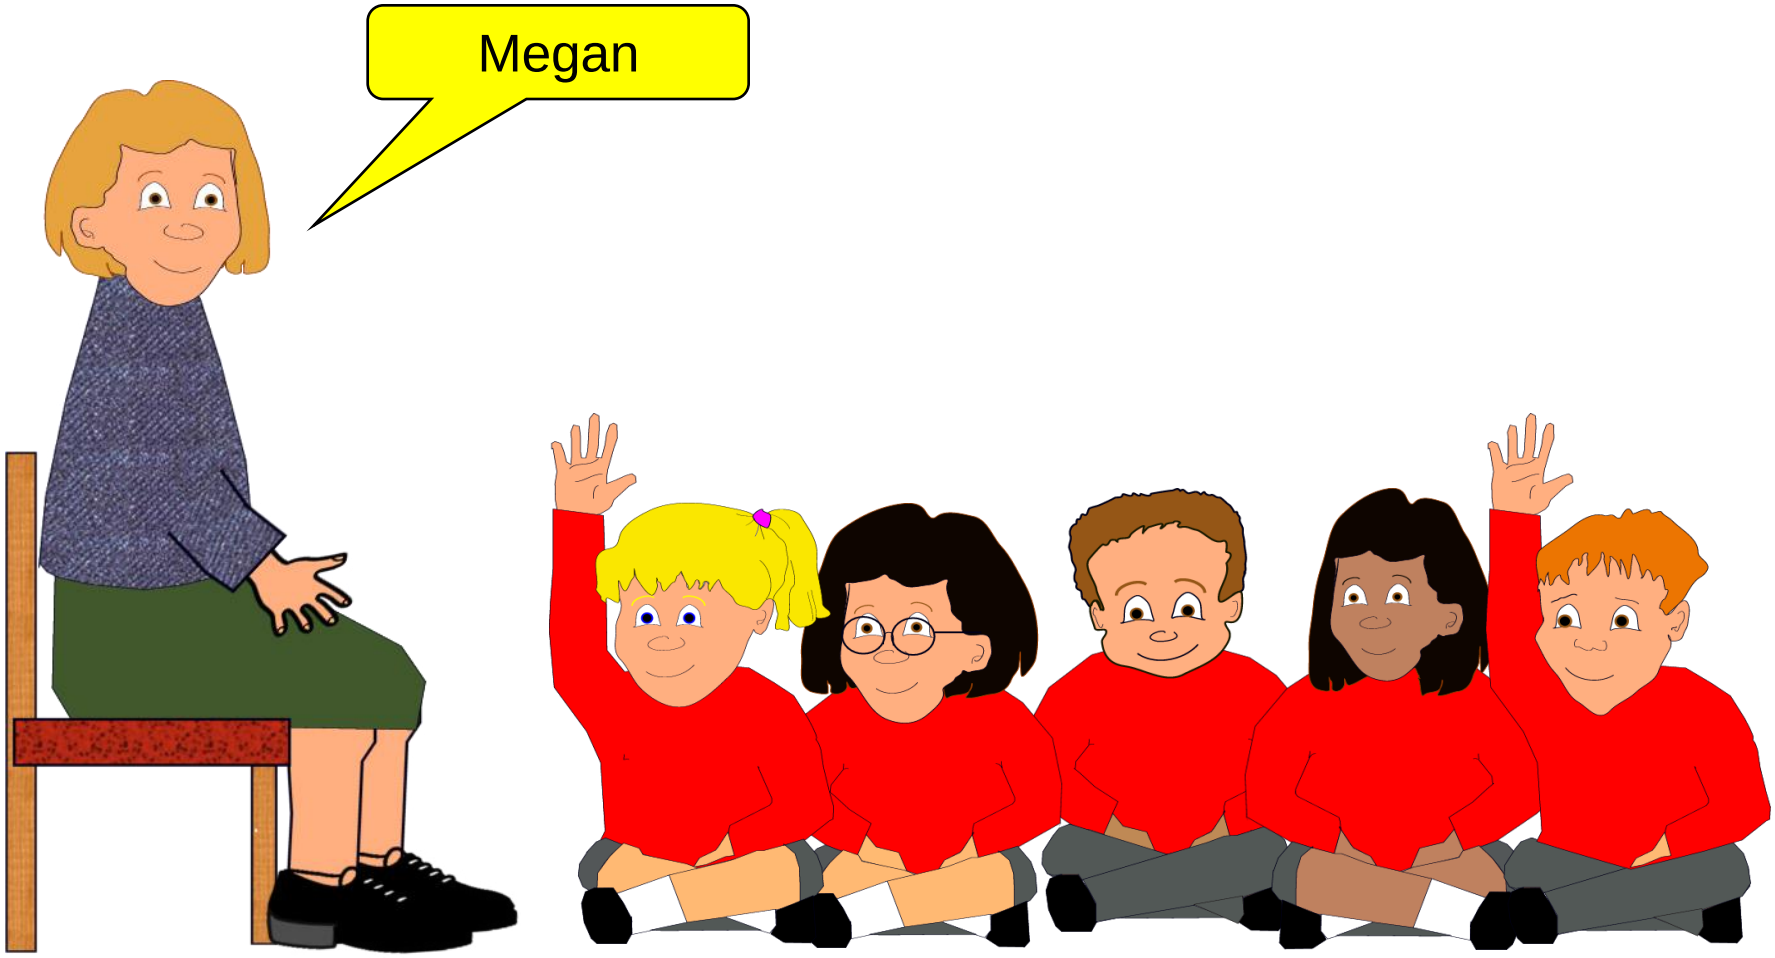

The children listen to her words and think about an answer.

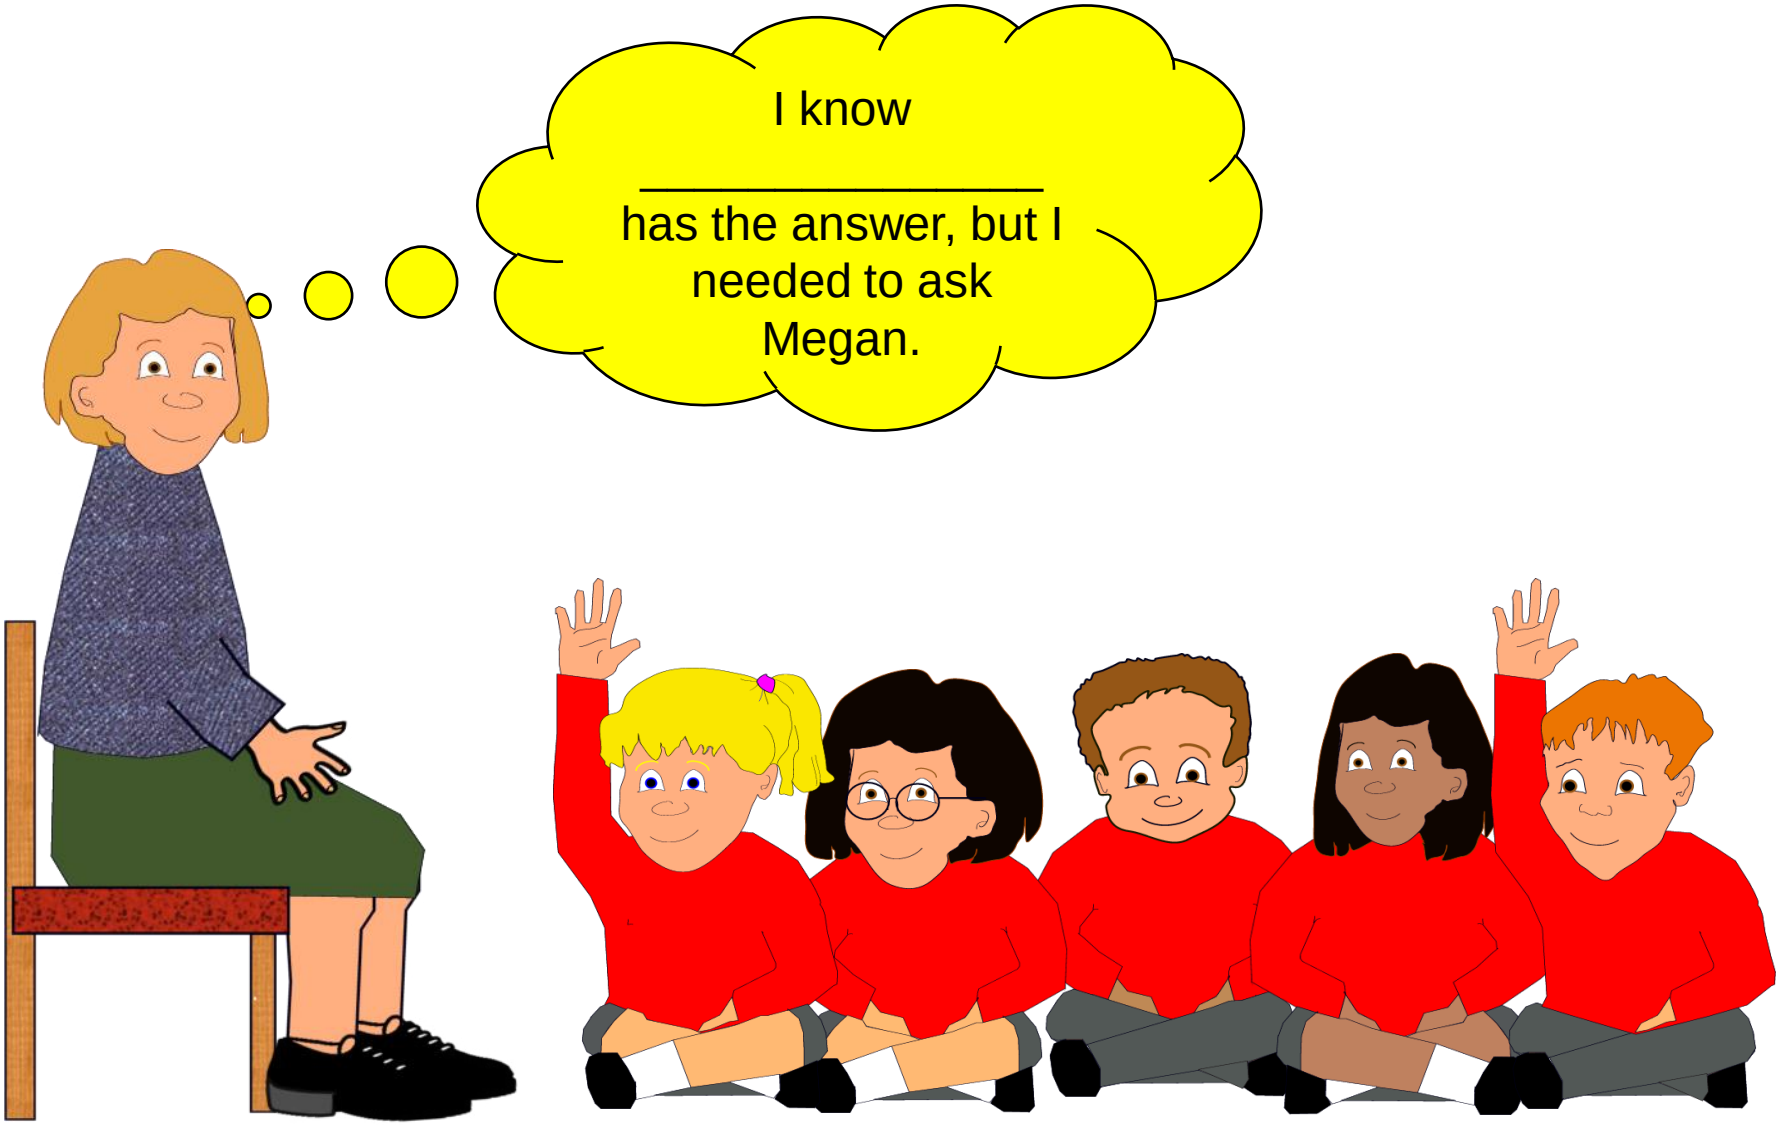

If the children think they have an answer they put their hands up.

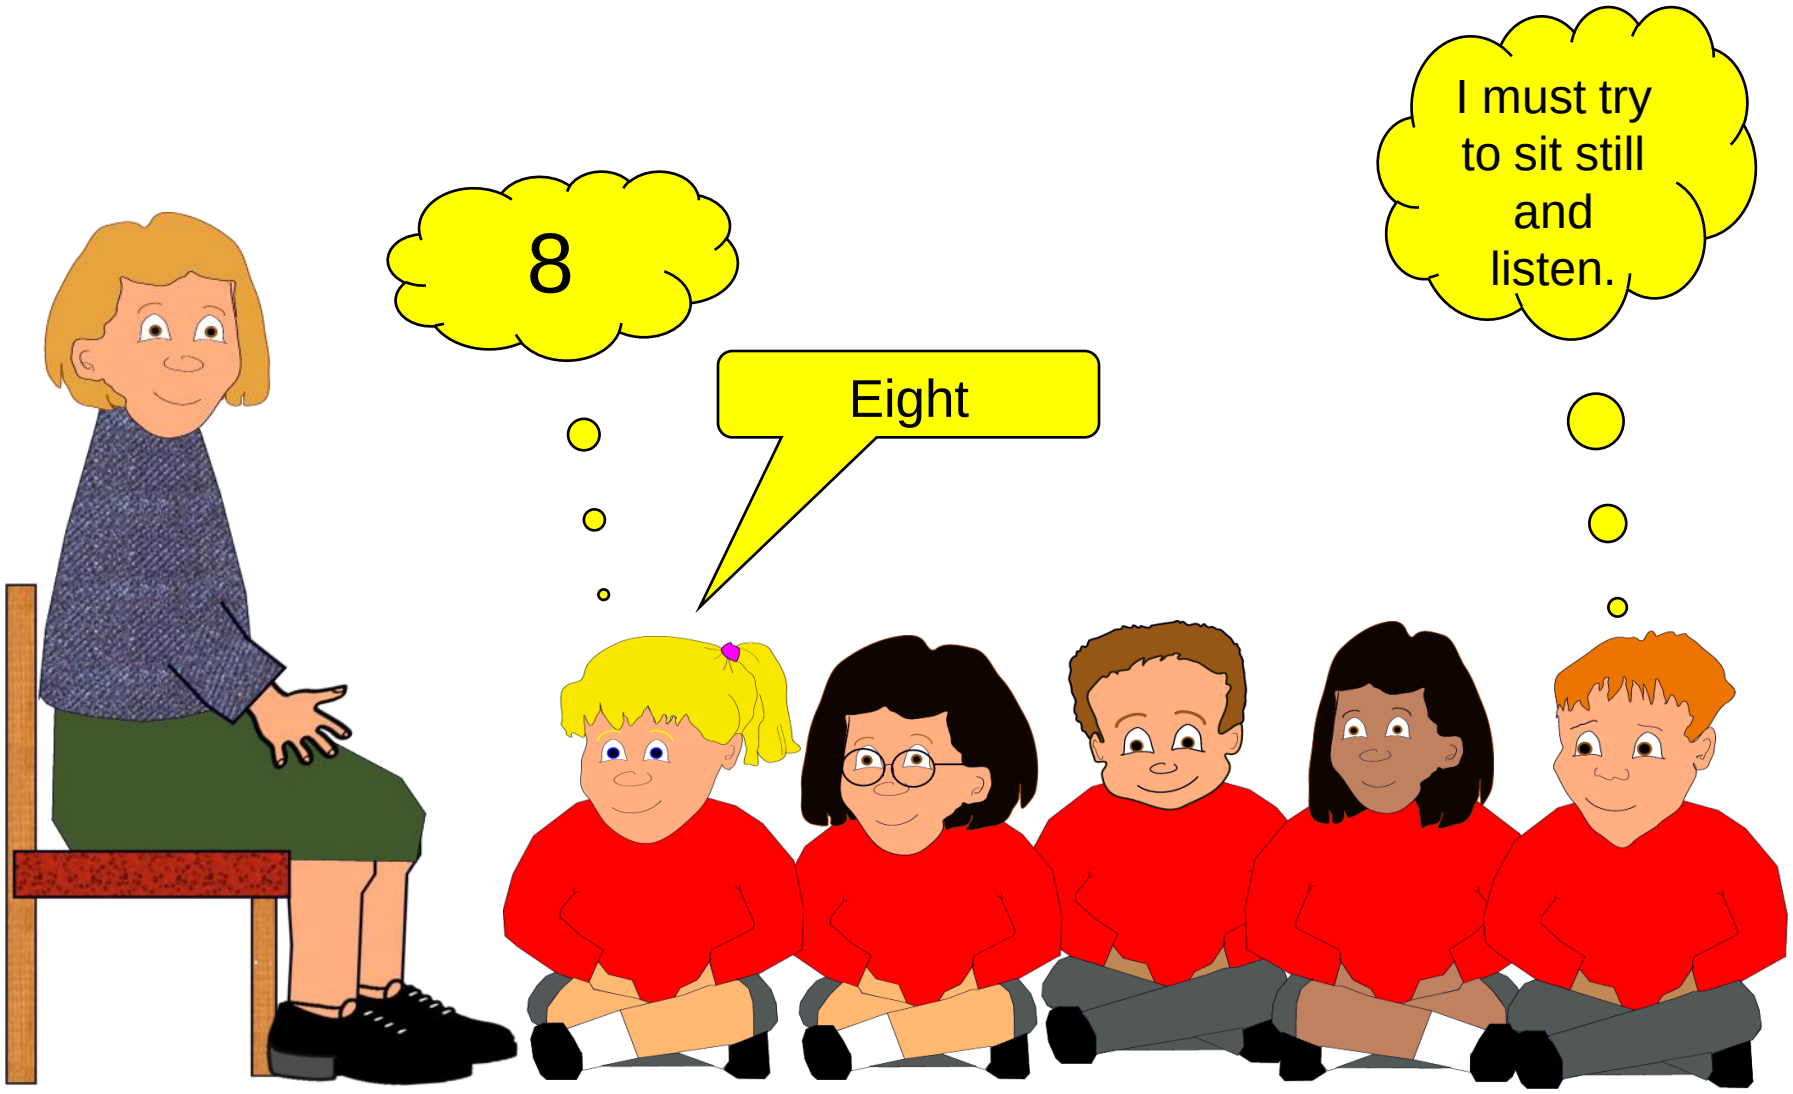

My teacher knows who has an answer, because they have their hands up.

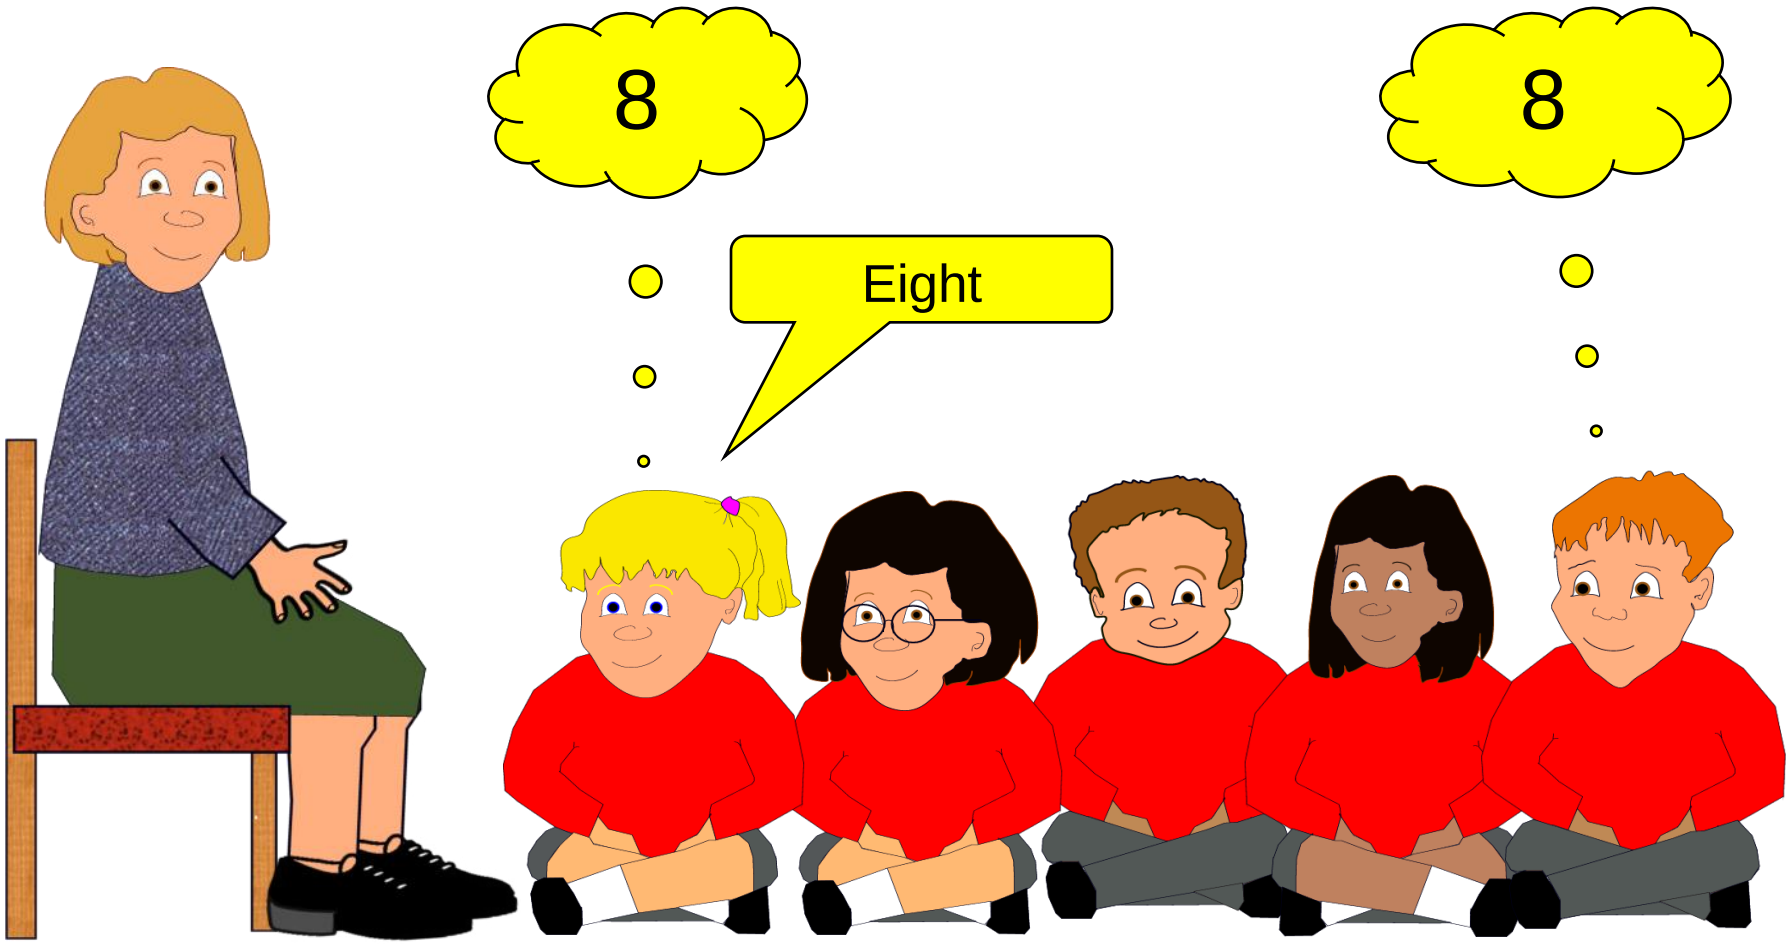

My teacher can only listen to one person at a time so she chooses one child to give their answer.

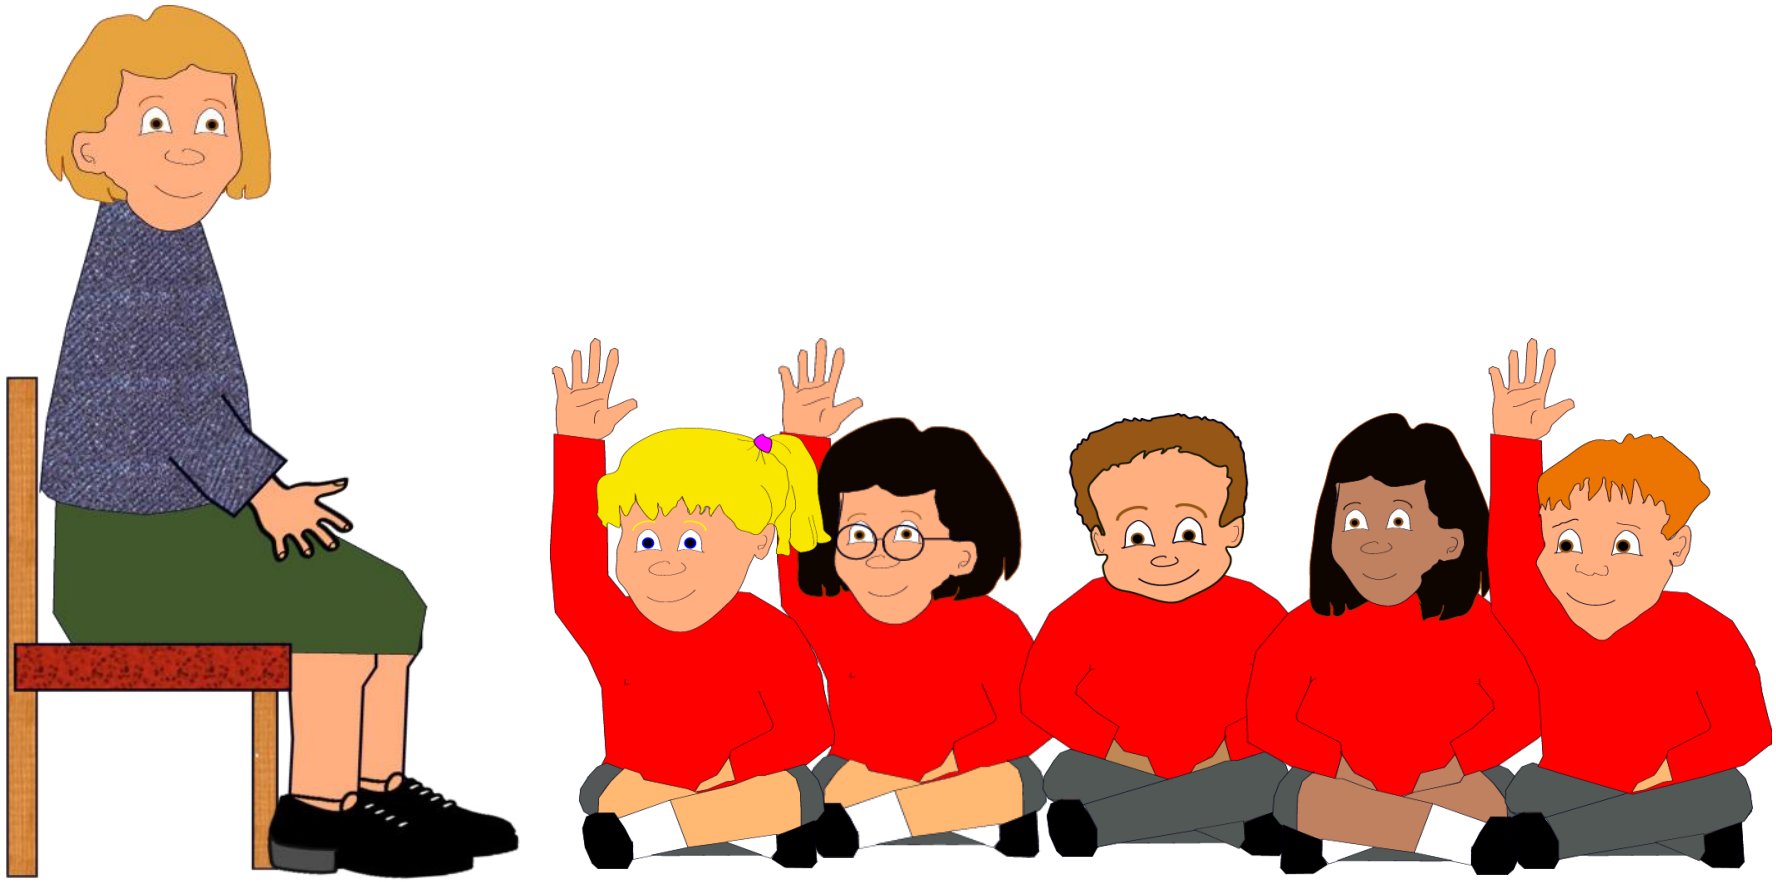

If I’m not chosen it doesn't matter, because the teacher knows I had an answer.

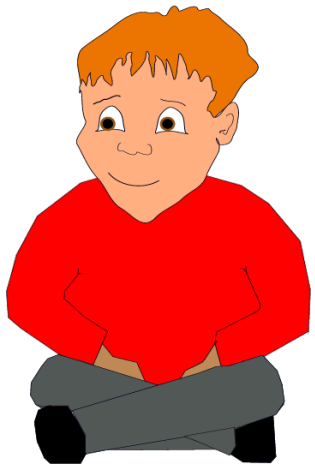

The person chosen gives the teacher their answer.

Sometimes their answer will be the same as mine, this is okay!!
It just means that we are both correct!!

I can try and answer the next question.
